Have a Coca-Cola=Let's work refreshed

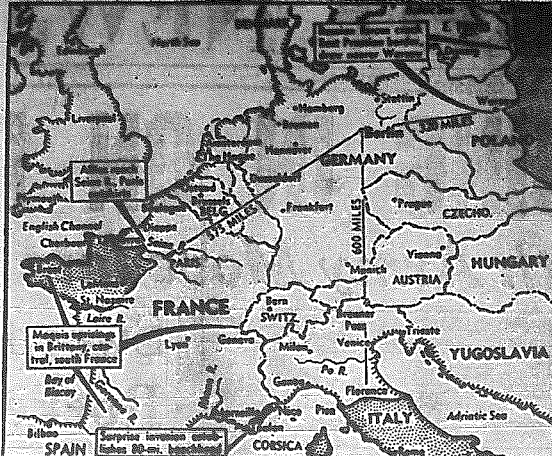

... or a helping hand on the farm

Helping to feed America means long hours in the fields; endless tasks to perform. All the more welcome, then, is the friendly pause for an ice-cold Coca-Cola. Have a "Coke," says a farm companion, and it means Let's work refreshed. In country home or city dwelling, frosty bottles of "Coke" belong in the icebox. Across America, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes, — a symbol of kindly hospitality.

WEEKLY ROUNDUP OF THE WAR—The weekly roundup of the war is shown in this map. Allies in one of the swiftest drives of the war reached the Seine River on the outskirts of Paris, bringing them within 600 miles of Berlin while Russian forces crack East Prussian borders and draw nearer to Warsaw. In the third corner of the drive against the German capital, American forces swept into Florence, Italy, with 600 miles to go. Southern coast of France established an 80-mile beachhead between Marseilles and Nice and troops push on into Toulon and other French towns. Maquis uprising in Brittany, Central, and Southern France cause German fear to surrender strongholds to the French Patriotes.

Baptist Pastors Hear Fifth Army Wingate College Head Is Praised

"Modern Trends in Religion" was the subject of an address by Dr. C. C. Burris, president of Wingate College, before a large attendance of ministers of the Baptist Pastors' Conference at the First Baptist Church this morning. He was introduced by the Rev. J. Clyde Yates who presided over the meeting.

"I am convinced," said Dr. Burris, "that the basic fundamentals of the Christian religion are constant, that it is the same today as it has always been. The difference in pagan religion and Christianity is that one tends to bondage and the other to freedom. Christianity was never intended as a prison house, but rather, encourages freedom of mind and action."

"One trend of religion is that we have come through a period of Puritanism. The world of today has broken these bonds—we cannot deny that, and we have a wave of liberalism in mind and action. Some of the innovations have come about by the drift to liberalism are good and some not so good. Then there is the tendency on our part to magnify the things on which we agree and minimize the things on which we cannot agree. The young people of today are not concerned about theology. The decline of denominationalism has come, however, much we may deplore it. The soldiers coming home after this war are going to demand that religion be genuine. You cannot fool people any more."

"The church must recapture an evangelistic zeal or we are lost. The church of today is not meeting the situation, in that it is not touching the lost. The church is facing the dawn of a new day and the great opportunity of all time, and the question is will we meet it," he said.

The Rev. E. T. Parham, retiring pastor of the Southside Church, brought the Scriptural lesson of the meeting, speaking on the subject, "Who is My Neighbor?" Mr. Parham, a resident of Charlotte, has been a student in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

P. S. Vann, clerk of the Mecklenburg Association, was present and emphasized the fact that the association meeting will be on Sept. 10-20, one week later than the regular meeting date.

KANSAS CITY—"Oh, we must take them up there," cried Paula Drelling and Helen Kirk. So firemen, who had just finished rescuing them from a second floor dance studio in which they had inadvertently been locked, climbed back up the ladder and brought down their purses.

I have plenty to eat. Please don't worry. I am well and safe. Tell all my friends where I am. Love to everyone and all tell them to write. We can receive all mail and parcels."

Dr. Yates Is Speaker

Dr. O. W. Yates, head of the department of Bible in Ochsleith College, Ark., and native of North Carolina, graduate of Wake Forest College, and descendant of the family that produced Matthew 23, "Ye blind guides," was the first great missionaries from North Carolina to go to a foreign field. He was the pastor of the First Baptist Church, supplying for Dr. C. C. Wren, the pastor, who is on vacation.

Dr. Yates' sermon subject at the morning "Hour of How Much Do We Love Jesus?" and was based on the questions propounded by Jesus in Peter in an early morning hour on the shore of the Sea of Galilee when he asked, "Do you love me more than these?" meaning the disciples and material things of life. Christ asked Peter if he loved him enough to die for him, but the question that should concern us today is, "Do we love Him enough to live for Him?" he said.

"We do as others. The standards we set up for our lives are usually the standards others have set up for themselves. We do as other people do. We should examine our lives and see if we are setting our standards according to those of the world or according to the standards of Jesus Christ."

"It is right and proper that we should love one another, but Christ is asking us this question, 'Do you love me more than these...?' the material things of life. Christ told Peter to prove his love, and he is expecting the same of us. He wants the night watchman's call to come first in our lives," said the speaker in conclusion.

"A Little Faith Plus God" was Dr. Yates' subject at the evening hour. Dr. C. C. Wren of Salisbury will be the guest minister at both services next Sunday, and Dr. Wren will occupy his pulpit on the Sunday following.

Negro Killed Trying To Kill Taxi Driver

Fast-shooting Taxi Driver J. B. Hucks of Charlotte, N. C., declined to be robbed and shot a bullet through the brain of Ira Mack, Negro fare, on Stonewall St. near McDowell, at 1:30 A. M. yesterday.

Later yesterday Mr. Hucks was released when Acting Coroner W. F. Hanks pronounced the shooting a justifiable homicide. The story was that he picked up the Negro on S. Tryon St. and was directed by his passenger, the Stonewall St. address.

There, Hucks said, Mack, instead of paying his fare, put a knife against the driver's throat and said: "Let's have it." Hucks put his hand in his pocket, and it came out shooting.

The killing cleared another case which had been under investigation by the City Detectives. Taxi Driver Clifford Watts had reported that on Friday night he had taken a Negro man to Seaboard and Oliver Sts., who struck him, broke his glasses and robbed him of $12. Watts yesterday looked at the picture of the dead Mack and identified him as the robber.

Mack was arrested by the City

Police in 1938 on a charge of purse snatching. He gave his age as 22 at that time, making him about 22 at the time of his death.
