

WARRANT BROUGHT BACK TERRY TO POLICE IN CHARGE OF ABDUCTING TERRY

Protest Expected

U. S. Provoked As Russian Soldiers Remain In Iran

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States Government is expected by diplomatic officials here to protest to Russia against the newly announced plan of keeping Red Army forces in so-called "disturbed" areas of Iran.

These diplomats, who refused direct quotation, said it was "perfectly reasonable to expect the American Government to object strongly to the Russian policy. Two reasons for this action were cited. One is that all Russian troops were supposed to get out of Iran by tomorrow at the latest. The other is that Secretary of State Byrnes in his New York speech last night laid heavy emphasis on the need for all countries to get their armies home again and stop using force or threats of force for political advantage.

The United States is concerned not only about Russian forces in Iran but also about those in Manchuria and Austria. Quiet efforts have been underway from some time to get Soviet agreement to a prompt withdrawal from Austria.

Byrnes' New York address, generally interpreted here as indicating a tougher attitude toward Russia all along the line, also opened the way for direct and vigorous measures to try to keep the Russians from stepping property from liberated and all former enemy satellite countries.

The American Government has not received any official notification of Russia's intentions, as reported from Tehran to be moving into Iran.

Developments Awaited

Nurse May Face Federal Charges

Whether the nineteen-year-old nursemaid known here as Rosemary Johnson, who disappeared Tuesday with Terry, four-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor, will be tried in State or Federal court, will depend upon developments. D. E. Henderson, United States District Attorney, told The News today.

Littlejohn In Capital

Check of the fingerprints of Rosemary Johnson, the nursemaid who disappeared with the four-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor, was being made this afternoon in the national headquarters of the FBI in Washington.

The news reached Capt. Frank N. Littlejohn, chief of the fingerprinting division of the FBI by telephone shortly after 2 P. M. and he said that he had arrived there with the young girl from Annapolis only a few minutes before.

Capt. Littlejohn said that the girl had told so many fantastic stories that he could hardly believe anything she said but that he was awaiting results of the fingerprint comparison to determine if she was the Sarah White, involved in similar episodes in the past.

En route back to Charlotte with the girl Capt. Littlejohn stopped at the FBI in the Nation's Capital and there the vast resources of the Federal agency were being tapped in the effort to fill in the mysterious girl's background.

When the Taylor child was found in Annapolis last night, local police were working on the angle that pointed to a young woman out of whose many names was Sarah White.

The fingerprints of Rosemary Johnson were taken in Washington.

See LITTLEJOHN on page 8-A.

WEATHER

Fair and warmer today and tonight. Saturday increasing cloudiness and mild. Temperature at 7:30 today 56 High and low last 24 hours, 53, 33. Sunset today 6:19. Sunrise tomorrow 6:11.

Terry And The Nursemaid In Annapolis

Acme picture, made in Annapolis, about 10 o'clock last night, was rushed to The News via air mail. (Other pictures of Terry in Annapolis are on page 8-A of this edition.)

Happy Reunion In Annapolis

Little Terry's Abductor Breaks Down After Night-Long Quizzing By Police

By TOM FESPERMAN, Charlotte News Staff Writer

The nursemaid who abducted Terry Taylor stood up well under a night-long barrage of questions in Annapolis, Md., but broke down completely about 7:30 o'clock this morning when Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor took Terry away.

Police Commissioner Thomas G. Basil of Annapolis told a News reporter by telephone at 7:45 that the young woman had broken down at the home a few minutes before and was "crying now."

"We are still at a loss as to her exact motive," Mr. Basil told The News.

Dr. and Mrs. Taylor went to the Basil home early this morning, immediately after their arrival in Washington by plane. The nursemaid and Terry had spent the night at the Basil home, mainly because the small child seemed attached to her abductor and did not want her out of her sight.

The Taylors and their daughter had a happy reunion this morning, however.

"They were overjoyed," said Commissioner Basil, "and Terry was very happy to see them. After the Taylors rested a few minutes, and talked with Terry, they left my home to go to the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C."

Dr. Taylor talked with the nursemaid for a few minutes this morning at the Basil home.

"On the way downtown, in Mrs. Spiers' car, Terry was intent upon showing a reporter the 'wicked old witch' in one of her comic books.

In high spirits, she pointed out parking spaces to Mrs. Spiers and walked off down the street while the car was being locked.

Taylors Get Ready For Return Home

Wife Of Navy Officer Gives Tip Which Leads To Recovery Of Child

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — (AP) — A young nursemaid was started on her way south to face abduction charges today as an anti-climax to the happy reunion of four-year-old Terry Taylor and her parents—a reunion Terry took with complete calm.

Detective Captain Frank Littlejohn, of Charlotte, N. C., announced that he had charged the nursemaid—known by several names—with abducting Terry from a Charlotte park on Tuesday.

He said she would be taken first to Washington for questioning by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and then would go to Charlotte.

The warrant was made out in the name of Rosemary Johnson, 19, the name which the young woman used in Charlotte. But Littlejohn signed a receipt for her from Annapolis police calling her Loretta Brozek, alias Sarah White. Police Commissioner Thomas G. Basil said she had given a fourth name in Annapolis Wednesday and a fifth last night shortly after she and Terry had been found here.

Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor, Terry's parents, came to Annapolis this morning for a reunion with their daughter at the home of Police Commissioner Thomas G. Basil where she had spent the night.

Terry greeted her mother with a "Hello, 'Mama'" when Dr. and Mrs. Taylor arrived here about 6:35 A. M., after a plane and automobile trip from Charlotte.

Mrs. Taylor first to enter Commissioner Basil's living room, found her little daughter munching cookies.

Terry looked up and said "Hello, Daddy," the mother replied. "Did you have a good time?"

"Yes," Terry said, still nibbling.

"You never saw so many people before, did you?" Dr. Taylor asked.

"No," she said.

"Dr. and Mrs. Taylor and Terry left within a short time for Washington. At the time they indicated they expected to fly from Washington to Charlotte late today.

Capt. Littlejohn, chief of Charlotte detectives, and Detective W. J. Miller arrived in Annapolis about an hour after the Taylors left for Washington after an all-night drive from Charlotte.

Capt. Littlejohn immediately began questioning the nurse at the home of Commissioner Basil. Later in the afternoon, Detective Miller left for Washington taking the nursemaid with him on the first leg of the trip back to Charlotte.

Capt. Littlejohn said that he was trying to establish the identity of the girl who has given several names. The warrant charging abduction is a comment on their investigation.

Two FBI agents questioned the nurse last night but declined to comment on their investigation.

Commissioner Basil said that he and some of his officers stayed up throughout the night, questioning the young woman who took Terry away from Charlotte last Tuesday.

"She told me that a soldier had picked up her and Terry in Charlotte," said Mr. Basil, "and she said she was just planning to ride with the soldier to Richmond and that she was going to take Terry and go back to Charlotte with Richmond."

"She said that when she got to Richmond, she decided she would go on to Washington and get a job so that she could make enough money to take Terry back home. She said she was afraid the Taylors would be worried."

"She said she came to Annapolis and got a job and was planning to go back to Charlotte."

Excitement Over Taylors Are Happy But Tired Pair

Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor were happy but extremely tired people this morning.

"We are completely worn out," Dr. Taylor told The News from his suite in the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C., the child played happily in the room, and she could be heard in the background.

Everybody seemed worn out except little Terry herself. While Dr. Taylor talked to The News from his suite in the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C., the child played happily in the room, and she could be heard in the background.

TENSION ENDS

The great tension and excitement surrounding the case had affected the child at all. She was still her lively self, happy to be with her parents but apparently unmindful of the clamor of press representatives and police detectives around her.

"We thought we would get some rest this morning," Dr. Taylor said, "I guess we will a little later. But it's been impossible this morning. There are a lot of news photographers here, and some newsreel people, and reporters and radio people. Mrs. Taylor is doing fine. She's tired, of course, but she's standing up very well."

Dr. and Mrs. Taylor and Terry expect to fly back to Charlotte this evening. He said that he had made tentative arrangements to return home on a plane leaving Washington at 5:10 o'clock this afternoon.

This may be changed, however, depending upon how much time it will take to clear up police investigation at Annapolis, Md.

"I've got to see Captain Littlejohn arrived in Washington this morning to bring the nursemaid back to Charlotte."

TALKS WITH NURSE

Dr. Taylor said he talked with the nursemaid on page 8-A.

See TAYLORS on page 8-A.

Other Stories And Abduction Pictures On Pages 8-A & 9-A

The First Tip

Newspaper Story Led To Solving Of Case

"When I read the story and my own case history, he said in touch with police authorities, he said.

The nation-wide publicity here played its valuable part. The case had attracted widespread attention and the police in Charlotte 'covered' completely here in Charlotte by staff members of The News and United Press and United Press.

When I read the story and my own case history, he said in touch with police authorities, he said.

The nation-wide publicity here played its valuable part. The case had attracted widespread attention and the police in Charlotte 'covered' completely here in Charlotte by staff members of The News and United Press and United Press.

When I read the story and my own case history, he said in touch with police authorities, he said.

The nation-wide publicity here played its valuable part. The case had attracted widespread attention and the police in Charlotte 'covered' completely here in Charlotte by staff members of The News and United Press and United Press.

When I read the story and my own case history, he said in touch with police authorities, he said.