Annexation Means More Than Taxes

City Council reportedly is trying to grease the skids for annexation by delaying discussion and final action on a whopping new budget. It is no great matter because any objection on this score will be limited strictly to the chambers of Council itself.

fact that the city of Charlotte — even now — does serve perimeter residents in all ways, at least depending on the circumstances of the resident involved. The real difficulty of city limits extension is that while the sharp reality of taxes is impossible to obscure, some of the other realities involved are relatively easy to obscure.

Hodges Picks A Pair Of Winners

THE TWO TOP jobs in North Carolina's newly streamlined governmental machinery went to young, vigorous, superbly equipped professionals. Paul A. Johnston as director of the Department of Administration and Wilfredo F. Babcock as director of highways, add significant strength to Gov. Hodges' varsity.

Paul A. Johnston is a 40-year-old transportation engineer who is both a member of the State College faculty and a consulting engineer with a national reputation in his field.

Cagoy Admiral Grabs For Control Of U. S. Atomic Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission will be in the hands of a new group of men when President Eisenhower takes office, and it is the job of the five-man commission to control the nation's atomic energy program.

Weep Not For An Exasperating Era

IT WAS inevitable, we suppose, that the death of Peggy Higgins Joyce would affect the output of the obituary writers the same way.

Hypocritical Males

NEVER one to mince words or compromise deeply held convictions, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith has flaily refused to sign a Senate resolution lauding Lavish praise for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

The Facade

What the chairman has built with his careful selections, which he has been making in the making, is to provide a plausible facade for his operations.

Three Hats

Already Strauss wears three hats. He is the President's advisor on atomic energy. Actually he is the only member of the five-man Atomic Energy Commission.

Old Guard Still Hunting Stassen's Scalp

It is leaked if John Foster Dulles has a long talk with him during which he is leaked that he is a diplomatic bungler.

Adenauer Worried

The secretary of state has always bowed from the waist when anything German approaches, dating from the days when, as attorney for New York banks, he urged the American public to treat the new sovereign Germany as a band of robbers.

'Sin of Pride'

What members of the Joint Committee really convict Strauss is the biblical sin of pride, the Greek hubris. It may seem a strange compulsion for a man so heaped with riches and honor, so well able by reason of superior intelligence and education to comprehend all that is involved in man's discovery of nuclear fission.
