Last Friday, May 27, the L. D. S. church held a vaudeville, a continuation of the homelated activities started earlier in the winter.

The key to the whole vaudeville was a little magic whistle which all, Dr. Kettering of Idaho Falls, who was magician-in-chief, had to do was blow and Presto! Change!—what ever he called for appeared. He called readings, piano selections, saxophone and organ solos.

He even called for Mahatma (will they ever leave poor Gandhi alone) the one who sees all and knows nothing. This Mahatma knew a lot more than anyone else, for while answering questions for the audience when asked, "Who invented the X-ray?" he answered, "Dr. Huff." Bright Boy, Mahatma. Art Blair wanted it kept quiet but Oh what a Hindu he makes.

Mrs. Merland Henrie and Mrs. A. N. Butler depicted some very weird characters in the little stunt called the old family album.

Marion Weeks and Muriand May rendered two beautiful instrumental solos. Mrs. Bill Grant's piano solo was also well rendered. Lucille DeLoney and Mrs. George Goe gave very interesting comic readings.

Too much cannot be said complimenting Carly Johnson, Dwight Stevens and Wayne Henrie on their cowboy songs. These boys had it down pat and sure "pit 'er on."

The last number was a one act farce comedy, "The Million Dollar Baby," written by N. J. DeLoney. All the action of the play was centered around a modern invention that increased the animate one hundred fold. By mistake a baby was placed in the machine his size was increased one hundred times. The crowd roared when B. J. Landfair came out as the inflated baby. Mrs. Merland Henrie and N. J. DeLoney depicted the "swedish couple," to the minute characteristic. The others in the play were Marion Weeks, Mrs. A. N. Butler and Burton DeLoney.

The L. D. S. church has done some fine work in dramatics this winter and should be complimented.

All the medium sized audience that attended the affair went home with their sides aching from laughter.

LEGION BAZAAR A GREAT SUCCESS

The American Legion Auxiliary held their annual bazaar at the Legion Home Friday, May 27. The success of the enterprise is verified by the number of things sold by them. Their stock consisted of many different household articles, such as rugs, baskets, beautiful paper flowers etc., and notions of all kinds, besides candy and hot lunches.

All day Friday there was a steady stream of traffic in and out of the building. Don't anyone say the Auxiliary members are not real saleswomen—anyone entering the building was certain to come out with an armful of wares.

The quilt, donated by Mrs. Clarence Blain, president of the Auxiliary, which was raffled off was won by Charlie Wilson.

THERE IS A CATCH IN THIS

It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this little paper—has there been so much and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against it, approaching months without employment, and without prospect of it.

In France the political cauldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia as usual is like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe, while all the energies, resources and influence of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its distributed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel indifference (which happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events.

Of our own troubles no man can see the end. . . . And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

—bet you thought the foregoing was written yesterday, didn't you? Well, it wasn't. It appeared in Harper's Weekly, October 10th, 1887—just 75 years ago.

A Demand For Economy

Almost everyone has an idea of what should be done by the people generally to bring back good times. All of our ideas can't be right, but we believe an adherence to strict rules of economy will do more right now than anything else. Many people, and most of our patrons, are now demanding everything that helps them to economize. We know they are right too. It's not hard for anyone, whose foods come from our store, to economize to the full extent, and at the same time, enjoy the markets best foods.

Mr. Deming Observes

Jackson, Wyoming, is a small community and many miles from a railroad, but it has two active and somewhat combative newspapers. The Jackson Courier is edited by Walter D. Perry. The Grand Teton, its younger rival, in a recent issue contained the following more or less indefinite personal notice:

"Walter D. Perry, his wife and child left Sunday morning last for somewhere. Went out over the Teton Pass, with the stage."

Evidently the Grand Teton does not believe in wasting bouquets, ethical or otherwise, upon a contemporary.—Wyoming State Tribune.
