Caril Told Grandmother:

'MAMA'S LIFE IN DANGER'

Mrs. Street Testifies About Try To Get Into Bartlett Home

By Del Harding

"Go away, grandma—mama's life is in danger if you don't go away!"

Caril Fugate's grandmother, Pansy Street, testified at Caril's Lancaster District Court murder trial Thursday afternoon that this is what Caril said to her when she attempted to gain entrance to the Marion Bartlett home at 924 Belmont last Jan. 27.

Mrs. Street, mother of Mrs. Velda Bartlett, said while Caril was telling her to go away Caril "moved her fingers" in front of her face as though she were pointing to something behind her.

Mrs. Street said she "got mad" after Caril refused to let her in the house and told Caril "If you won't let me in here I'll go back to town and get a search warrant and get in here." She said Caril did not reply.

Her testimony was seen as a further attempt by defense Atty. John McArthur to bolster his contention that Caril was being held hostage in her own home by Charles Starkweather under the threat that if she (Caril) did not co-operate with him he would kill her family (the Bartletts).

Actually, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett and 2½-year-old Betty Jean Bartlett (Caril's half sister) had been murdered Jan. 21 but Caril has claimed she did not find this out until Jan. 30.

Went To Police

Mrs. Street testified that she decided she "was going to get in that house and find out what was wrong with "her daughter, so she took a taxi to Police Headquarters.

She said she told a policeman, whose name she did not know but from her description apparently was Asst. Police Chief Eugene Masters, that she wanted to find out what the trouble was at the Bartletts. She said two detectives (George Hansen and Ben Fischer) then drove her back to 924 Belmont.

Upon arrival they found the doors locked so one detective climbed in a window and opened the front door. They all entered and searched the house but found it unoccupied (Caril and Starkweather had reportedly fled a few minutes after Mrs. Street had left threatening to get a search warrant).

Didn't Check Sheds

She said they then left, without checking the two sheds behind the house where the Bartlett's bodies were found later that day, and the detectives dropped her off near her home at 425 No. 10th.

Mrs. Street said they told her in effect that "I'd better go home and not stick my nose in my married kid's affairs if they didn't want me around."

She said that afternoon she turned on her radio "expecting to hear trouble" and on the 5 or 6 p.m. newscast heard the Bartlett's bodies had been found.

County Atty. Elmer Scheele asked her on cross examination if she noticed anything unusual in the house, but she was firm in her answer that she was not looking for anything unusual but only for her daughter.

Her testimony highlighted the second day of McArthur's presentation which was also marked by the appearance of 9 other defense witnesses.

May Call Caril Friday

McArthur said he may recall Caril herself to the stand again Friday and also on Monday, and that he now expects to complete his case Monday.

The testimony of defense witnesses Thursday did not dispute earlier prosecution evidence, which was highlighted by the assertion of Starkweather himself that Caril was his willing companion and helper. She is charged with murder as his accomplice in the killing of Robert Jensen, 17, of Bennet.

Instead, the witnesses apparently were called to back up contentions previously stated by McArthur that:

—Local lawmen did not competently investigate the murder of Starkweather's first victim, service station attendant Robert Colvert (who was robbed and killed Dec. 1).

—Caril and her family (the Bartletts) were very "close," and that she especially loved young Betty Jean. (Starkweather has claimed Caril helped him kill her own family.)

—Caril had little chance to escape from Starkweather because more intelligent and mature persons than she had not been able to.

—Caril herself has been a model patient while held at the Lincoln State Hospital since Jan. 31 awaiting trial.

Gave Descriptions

Two defense witnesses, Mrs. Katherine Kamp of 1953 Jefferson and Robert McClung of 1210 Nelson, said they gave partial discriptions of Starkweather to lawmen following Colvert's murder.

Mrs. Kamp said she told Police Det. Harry Davis that on Dec. 2 a man with "fiery

Brooks' Lead Drops Little In AP Count

Gov. Victor E. Anderson trailed behind his Democratic opponent, Ralph Brooks, by 2,444 votes Thursday as additional mail votes became available for inclusion in the Associated Press unofficial tabulations of the closely-contested race.

Completion of the count of mail votes in Douglas County, and additional mail votes from Lancaster County, changed the margin imperceptibly.

Current Associated Press totals gave Brooks 209,541, Anderson 207,097.

Anderson is taking 65 per cent of the mail vote, with 1,833 cast for him and 988 for Brooks. It is estimated that fewer than 5,000 mail ballots still are to be counted.

Thirty-one counties now have reported mail votes and the rest are expected to become available when official county canvasses are completed Friday.

Douglas County completed the mail vote Friday with 724 for Anderson, and 357 for Brooks.

Lancaster County added another batch, 52 to 17 in the governor's favor, with the total mail vote so far in that county 464 for Anderson, and 267 for Brooks.

Cherry County reported its official canvass which added 38 mail votes for Anderson, 9 for Brooks.

Latest United Press International figures cut Brooks' lead over Gov. Anderson to 1,916 votes. The count included a 100-vote revision in favor of Anderson in Garfield County.

Bixler Takes County Mail Vote 464-250

State Sen. J. Monroe Bixler of Harrison, apparently unsuccessful Republican candidate for state treasurer, won Lancaster County as the result of a heavy mail vote in his favor.

That was the only change in county results as election Commission officials completed the count of all but 17 absentee ballots whose validity has not been determined.

The official canvass of county votes will be received Friday when all county reports are completed.

Mrs. Fern Hubbard Orme retained a narrow 627-vote lead over Don Devries for the 20th District legislative seat, and Democrat Jack Harlan held a 604-vote edge over Republican Jack Scheutz for county commissioner, Second District.

County mail vote totals in the close races:

Governor: Republican Victor Anderson, 464; Democrat Ralph Brooks, 397.
Lieutenant Governor: Republican Dwight Burney, 458; Democrat Frank Sorrell, 263.
State Treasurer: Republican Bixler, 464; Democrat Larsen, 256.
Legislature, 20th District: Devries, 263; Mrs. Orme, 308.
County Clerk: Republican J. B. Morgan, 450; Democrat Carl S. Hartman, 260.
County Commissioner, 2nd District: Republican Schoutz, 438; Democrat Harlan, 252.

Double A-Plan Offered

..At Geneva Talk

Geneva (AP) — The United States Thursday called on Russia to join the U.S. and British governments in a double-header project to suspend nuclear tests and cooperate with an international control organization.

The American proposal was introduced in the 3-power talks by Ambassador James J. Wadsworth.

It was designed to free the delegates from the disagreement over the order of business that has bogged down their discussions since they convened two weeks ago.

Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin's reaction to the American plan was negative. The West still hoped, however, that the Russians would give the proposal careful study.

Treaty

Wadsworth's paper described what the Americans and British insist should be in a treaty for suspension of atomic and hydrogen weapon tests.

Its 1st article called for the undertaking of the double obligation, linking test suspension tightly to a control system.

The Russians have tried to get the U.S. and British delegations 1st to commit themselves to an immediate and permanent suspension of nuclear tests. Then, the Russians have said, the conference could go on to talk about controls.

Troop Slash Near

McElroy Will Cut Marines And Army

From Press Dispatches

Washington—Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy disclosed Thursday that he shortly will order a 55,000-man slash in the size of the Army and Marine Corps.

McElroy conceded that the cuts, which were delayed by the Lebanon and Quemoy crisis, come at a time when the free world now is "being pushed aggressively by the Communist world at a number of points."

But he told a news conference the lessons of Lebanon and Quemoy reinforced the policy of placing chief U.S. emphasis on the Air Force and Navy while this nation's allies build up their ground forces with American help.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, registered a prompt dissent. He called McElroy's announcement "amazing" and said the defense chief's reasoning "is unsound if he's relying chiefly on the Navy and Air Force."

Under McElroy's forthcoming order, the Army will be forced to lop off 30,000 men, reducing it to a post-Korean low of 870,000. The Marines will be slashed by 25,000 men to a total of 175,000.

Curtailing

McElroy hinted the military is thinking of curtailing the program for overseas deployment of intermediate range ballistic missiles.

But at the same time, the defense chief told a news conference the United Sates will go ahead with production of all IRBMS now scheduled for production and overseas use.

These missiles will go to Britain and probably to Italy.

Boyle Says '4-5 Firms Will Bond Treasurer'

. . . Anderson Says No Bids Received

By Betty Person

Word from the Capitol Thursday that the state received no bids for a $1 million bond required for Treasurer-elect Richard Larsen of Omaha, were countered by a statement from Bernard J. Boyle, Democratic national committeeman, that "4 or 5 bonding companies" have called Boyle "soliciting" for the bond.

Gov. Victor Anderson had disclosed earlier Thursday that no bids were submitted to the state on the personal bond required for the treasurer.

Two bonding companies Wednesday submitted bids to the State Insurance Department for the offices of governor and other state officials, and a blanket bid on state employes for the next two years, but bids on the personal bond required for the treasurer were not received.

The governor said that two years ago, 35 bids were submitted.

Insurance Department Director John Binning left for New York City Wednesday night to discuss the problem with the Surety Association of America, an organization of large stock bonding companies which promulgates rates on bonds and sets up contract forms and policies.

Opinion Asked

Gov. Anderson asked the Attorney General's office if it would be possible to include in the bond of the State Treasurer a condition that all official papers and documents emanating from that office were to be signed or countersigned by the deputy, rather than the Treasurer.

But the Attorney General's office, in a letter signed by Deputy Clarence A. H. Meyer, said this cannot be done.

Meyer said the Nebraska Constitution requires the State Treasurer to "take an oath that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office according to the best of his ability."

Under Nebraska law, Meyer continued, it is provided that "all official bonds shall obligate the principal and sureties for the faithful discharge of all duties required by law of such principal."

Meyer said that "our statute relating to the State Treasurer imposes all the duties of that office directly upon the officer himself, and not upon his deputy."

Wiring Ruling

Gov. Anderson said late Thursday that he was wiring the attorney general's ruling to Binning in New York, but added that the insurance director probably would remain there to continue discussions with the bonding companies to see what can be worked out.

January 8 is the date for swearing in state officers elected in the last general election. Gov. Anderson said Larsen would have 10 days from that date to furnish bond if he wants to take office.

if he does not furnish bond, and the governor, who apparently will be Ralph Brooks, does not appoint a treasurer, then the present treasurer, Mrs. Bertha Hill, must renew her bond and would continue to fill the office.

Several Seek Business

Boyle told The Lincoln Star Thursday night that several bonding companies have contacted him "soliciting the business of bonding Mr. Larsen as state treasurer."

Boyle said the "republican hue and cry over this is just sour grapes at losing the election and a chance for Mr. Binning to get a free trip to New York at the taxpayers' expense to attempt to accomplish something we didn't ask them to do.

"Methinks they doth protest too much," Boyle commented.

Larsen was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Missile Sites Selected North, South Of Lincoln

. . . Final Decision Still Awaited

By Virgil Falloon

Tentative selection of two Nike-Hercules missile sites bracketing the Lincoln Air Force Base was made Thursday by an Army Air Defense Command reconnaissance team.

One proposed site is near Berks on State Hwy. 33 about 6 miles east of Crete and 13 miles southwest of the Lincoln base.

The other, about 10 miles north of the base and slightly east, is 3 miles east of Agnew.

Maj. Fred H. Baker, senior officer of the team, said the site locations are tentative and no definite decisions will be made until the Army Corps of Engineers and ADC headquarters review the team's recommendations.

Final site decision usually takes about 3 to 4 weeks after recommendations are made, Major Baker said.

To Try Negotiation

Major Baker said the recommended sites, both located on farm land, would be acquired through "negotiated sales," if possible.

While the sites are near the air base, Lincoln would receive equal protection, the officer said. The Nike protects a 20,000 square-mile area.

Approximate completion date for the installations is 1960. Construction would begin some 8 months from the time Washington gives approval to the projects.

Major Baker and Capt. Henry C. Sellers of the 4th Region ADC headquarters at Kansas City, said 8 acres would be acquired for the radar site and 27 acres for the missile launching area.

A restrictive easement, which will permit farm operations but no buildings, will be acquired on an additional 77 acres.

Major Baker said the radar site would be visible on high ground, but the missile launchers would be in revetments and would not be visible at ground level. The two areas will be about 1,000 yards apart.

100 Men Each

Each battery will be manned by 100 men, have 12 launchers, and cost approximately $1.5 million exclusive of specialized equipment.

The missile officer stressed that the missile launchers would not be fired except in an enemy attack. Missile crews go to Red Canyon, N.M., for training and practice, he explained.

Each battery site will have both barracks and family quarters. There will also be a small headquarters.

Major Baker said the team will leave Lincoln Friday morning and return to Kansas City.

The officer said the nearest operational Nike Hercules batteries are now at Rapid City, S.D., but installations are under construction at Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas, and St. Paul-Minneapolis.

'B-K' BREAK EXPLAINED

Soviet Ex-Premier Mentioned Only Casually In 7-Year Plan Report

London (AP)—The Soviet Communist Party Thursday night linked former Premier Nikolai Bulganin with the "anti-party group" of high officials expelled from office last year.

Bulganin was mentioned almost casually in a report on Russia's upcoming 7-year plan for economic development of the Soviet Union.

Bulganin

Moscow Radio, quoting the report, said the Communist Party "is conducting a determined struggle against those who cling to the old outmoded form and methods of work, were afflicted with conservatism and opposed the implementation of the Leninist general line of the party.

Others Named

"In this context the theses (reports) refer to the exposure and routing of the anti-party group of Malenkov, Kaganovich, Molotov, Bulganin and Shepilov who joined them, who slid down the road to faction-splitting activity."

It was the first time Russia has leveled serious charges against the bearded ex-premier who once shared the spotlight of Kremlin power with Nikita Khrushchev.

Bulganin was ousted as premier last March and appointed director of the state bank. Later he was made chairman of a local economic council in the remote Caucusus town of Stavropol.

Last September he was removed from the Presidium of the Soviet Communist Party.

Falls From Power

His fall from power came after he reportedly lost favor with Khrushchev over the ouster of the "anti-party group" in the summer of 1957.

The 2 had won some international fame as the traveling "B and K" team that visited the Middle East, the Far East and Britain on good-will political missions.

The 63-year-old Bulganin's downfall has been steady since he was ousted from the premiership last March 27.

There was some speculation that Bulganin's ill health figured in the changes, but there was no doubt he was on the skids from the first.

Opposed Khrushchev

Communists outside the Soviet Union dated Bulganin's fall from grace to the reports that he first sided with the anti-party group against Khrushchev in the Kremlin upheaval on July 4, 1957. After Khrushchev and Yekaterina Furtseva, leading woman Communist in the Soviet Union mustered support for Khrushchev in the party Central Committee voting, Bulganin was reported to have switched his stand.

Germans Break Up Red Meet

. . . Berlin Riot

Berlin (AP) — More than 3,000 angry West Berliners laid siege to a Communist party rally Thursday night shouting: "Get out, Communists."

The demonstrators broke windows and smashed against the doors of the historic sports palast in the heart of this occupied city as East German Red leaders echoed Soviet demands for allied troops to leave West Berlin. Sympathetic police finally channelled the attackers into side streets.

Inside the big building where Josef Goebbels and other Nazi leaders once made rabble-rousing speeches, 6,500 Reds had gathered with police permission for a campaign meeting in West Berlin's parliamentary elections Dec. 7. The Reds never have won a single seat in the 132-member body.

To insure a so-called successful meeting, the Reds carefully imported most of their audience from East Berlin.

Worn Thin

The temper of the normally good-natured West Berliners, worn thin by the nerve war launched by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, exploded when word of the meeting got out.

Hundreds of West Berlin police turned back thousands who tried to reach the sports arena without entry tickets.

But youths and refugees from East Germany, shouting "down with Communists," broke through the police lines repeatedly by the hundreds before the demonstration dwindled.

About 80% of the Sports Palast audience finally boarded trains for East Berlin. Their leaders slipped out the back door of the hall.

The campaign meeting was quickly turned into a propaganda platform to demand the ouster of the U.S.-British-French allies from Berlin.

'Normal'

A huge red banner draped across the hall proclaimed:

"The battle for the normalization of Berlin must become a matter for all opponents of the atom war."

In the lingo of the East German Communist regime normalization means taking over all Berlin as its capital.
