KENNEDY

terworth, a merchant of Bethel, who was a tent-mate of Kennedy's at Vella La Vella in the Solomon Islands in 1943 when the two were PT boat commanders in World War II.

The official greeting party met Kennedy briefly, then headed a motorcade into town for a visit to a tobacco warehouse, where a mock tobacco sale had been arranged.

Party officials had requested citizens not to clog the airport but to assemble in Greenville to see Kennedy.

Riding with Kennedy in the first car were John Clark, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committe; Rep. Herbert Bonner, and Terry Sanford, Democratic nominee for governor.

Crowds lined the streets along the Massachusetts senator's route to a tobacco warehouse described as the world's largest and then to the East Carolina College stadium where about 12,000 persons had assembled to hear a speech in which Kennedy lashed out at Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

In the second car were Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr., and Everett Jordan, Gov. Luther Hodges and Lt. Cloyd Philpott, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor.

Butterworth described Kennedy as "a very fine officer" and added: "He impressed me as one of the highest type officers I met during my years in service."

Also in the crowd was Dennis Hardy, also of Bethel, who was in the same PT outfit with Kennedy and Butterworth, but not in the same squadron. He said he had not known Kennedy in service, but met him after service days.

Aides of the senator called today's packed North Carolina tour the toughest schedule of Kennedy's campaign.

The tour—which includes stops here, at Greensboro, Asheville, Charlotte and Raleigh — is the Democrats' first major answer to a serious Republican challenge for the 14 Tar Heel electoral votes.

The last time a Democratic presidential candidate appeared this far east in North Carolina was in 1896 when William Jennings Bryan campaigned in Goldsboro and Rocky Mount.

The Greenville market staged a mock tobacco auction for Kennedy. In knocking down one pile of bright leaf at the high price of 81 cents a pound, the auctioneer chanted, "Let's see old Jack get to the White House, boys."

The presidential candidate's party then drove to the stadium where one thrilled coed, Charlotte Barkley of Sharpsburg, had been waiting since [illegible] "I was so excited I couldn't sleep," she explained.

Kennedy's staff had distributed to newsmen copies of his prepared speech discussing farm problems, attacking Benson and endorsing the present tobacco program. But the Massachusetts senator virtually threw away the prepared version and talked off the cuff.

Kennedy left the stadium about 10:30 a.m., regaining a few of the minutes he had lost by the late arrival. His timetable allows very few minutes for delays.

However, Kennedy arrived in Greensboro at 11:35 a.m., still about half-hour behind schedule. A crowd estimated by the State Highway Patrol at 8,000 warmly greeted Kennedy.

Before his arrival, there was band playing and speeches by state and local Democrats, including U.S. Rep. Ralph Scott who said that so far in this campaign the real issues have not yet been discussed.

Retiring Rep. Carl Durham of Chapel Hill called on the crowd "to go down the line all the way" with the Democrats.

Kennedy addressed the crowd from a bunting - draped platform built on a ramp at the Greensboro-High Point Airport.

guard for his residence, but the understanding was that he was free to move about if he wished.

After his disappearance Mrs. Lumumba asked for U.N. protection for herself and her two children.

The Communist exodus still leaves undecided the dispute the Russians and their allies set off in the United Nations when they funneled men and supplies into the Congo to aid Lumumba in his power struggle with Kasavubu.

MUNICIPAL UPS AND DOWNS

DENVER (AP) — Leslie J. Fore, who runs an elevator at the Colorado Historical Museum, is a former dance band leader. He estimates he has 50,000 copies of sheet music in his collection, including 107 that have some reference to Colorado.

Movements Of Red Vessels Building Space Speculation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unexplained movements of six Soviet ships in the Atlantic and Pacific are building up speculation that the Soviet Union soon may shoot a man into space.

New details, released by the U.S. Navy Friday, show that two of the ships, a tanker and a tug, are standing off the Grand Banks in the Atlantic.

That's just where a Soviet satellite might pass if it followed the same path as Soviet rockets in the past. A capsule ejected by such a satellite probably would fall into the ocean near the two Soviet ships.

The speculation is that the Soviets may fire a space capsule with a man in it and then recover it in the Atlantic.

Such a spectacular space try, if attempted soon, would come on the eve of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's arrival in New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

It also would mean that the world would have two significant space attempts in a brief period of time.

The United States is preparing to try shooting a rocket around the moon. The try will be made between Sept. 22 and 26, while Khrushchev is in the United States.

Besides the tanker Kokand and the fleet tug Fedotov in the Atlantic, the Soviets have four instrument ships strung out in the Pacific.

The four ships in the Pacific could be used as instrument ships to track the satellite while the tanker and tug could be used to hunt for the capsule, according to the speculative theory.

ANTI-U. S.

with espionage and ordered expelled from the country along with another embassy employe, Robert L. Neet.

Mrs. Lennox was reported in good condition and was said to be leaving for the United States today. The embassy maintained a strict silence on the case.

Mrs. Lennox said she had not been mistreated by Castro's secret police, who invaded her downtown Havana apartment in a post-midnight raid Thursday. She said authorities had refused to tell her why she was jailed.

An embassy spokesman said the embassy had received a note from the Cuban government saying Mrs. Lennox had been detained after police had rounded up other persons, including three Americans. These persons were identified in the note as Eustace Dan Brunet, Edmundo Transke and Daniel L. Carswell. The embassy spokesman said he could not discuss or clarify the charges against them.

Mrs. Lennox, a divorcee, was held at her apartment for 10 hours while police questioned her and searched the apartment. Then she was taken to police headquarters.

LITTLE BOY — BIG FISH

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — To 11-year-old Terry Burnett, it was an irresistable challenge when a 500-pound shark cruised by the pier where he was fishing.

The boy was outweighed 10 to 1 and had only a light rod with a reel carrying less than 200 yards of 50 - pound test line. But he tossed his bait in front of the monster, which took it, and the battle was on.

For an hour and a half, they tugged back and forth. Three times the shark dragged the boy the 650 - foot length of the pier. When the shark approached the pilings, Terry yelled "stomp" and the crowd of onlookers would stamp their feet on the boards to scare the monster back to open water.

Finally, the youngster was able to hold the shark's head on the beach long enough for other fishermen to drive home snatch hooks. It took 10 men to drag the boy's catch onto the sand.

POPULAR SITTER

OAKHURST, N. J. (AP) — Susan Lee Brady thinks baby sitters should do more than just sit.

The high school senior puts on a show for children three times a week, complete with accordian music, magic tricks and puppets. Needless to say, she's the most popular "sitter" in town.

Advisory Budget Group Ready To Start Main Job

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission now has the raw materials it will use to prepare a 1961-63 appropriations bill for submission to the General Assembly in February.

The budget agency is expected to meet here Friday to begin the task of approving or rejecting money requests received during public hearings the past eight days.

The hearings ended Friday after the State Board of Education requested $106 million to improve the public school system. Nearly $70½ million of the total would be used to increase teacher and principal salaries.

The hearings were held to determine what state agencies wanted in the way of money to increase their services above 1959-61 levels. These requests totaled nearly $144 million.

The Budget Commission already has approved more than $626 million to continue state services at their present levels. It also has received requests for capital improvement appropriations.

The Board of Education request, termed "a package for progress in public school education" by Chairman Dallas Herring, was somewhat higher than a proposal by United Forces for Education.

Democratic gubernatorial nominee Terry Sanford endorsed the board's request and Gov. Hodges said the board "did very well indeed." However, Hodges said he was not ready to commit himself and added that the board's request would be treated the same as those from other agencies.

The requested salary increase would provide a range of $3,600 to $5,600 and an average school teacher salary of $4,734.10 a year. The national average is $5,025.

The board requested $13,409,665 to hire 1,423 new teachers during the biennium. It also asked for $1,622,656 to provide additional vocational teachers.

The State Bar Association requested about $220,000 to boost the pay of Supreme Court justices and Superior Court judges. It also urged expenditure of about $91,000 for the biennium to provide salary hikes for district solicitors.

The department of administration requested $151,893 to strengthen its purchase and contract division, staff a division of personal property control and enable it to expand in other areas.

Scattered Tacks

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Carl W. Bright, 71, admits he got mad when the state drivers license bureau denied him a license after he had driven cars since 1920.

But officers decided that was no excuse for his three subsequent visits to the bureau's parking lot where he scattered hundreds of carpet tacks that punctured tires on many cars.
